

After the Fire Goes Out

Jody Azzouni

Originally published in APA's Newsletter on Philosophy and Medicine 91:1, 1992
© 1992, 2001 Jody Azzouni

The ashes flutter like black moths when I stir them, then settle down again like a scattered dead thing going back to sleep.