

Making a splash

Jody Azzouni

Originally published in Twilight Ending 6:2, 2000
© 2000 Jody Azzouni

The tired waterfall; its continuous collapse; its color: ghost. Sometimes we too trip over ourselves, splash our innards about locally; leave something damp subject to gossip and gaping. Residuals earn their place; only the essence evaporates.