

Intercourse

Jody Azzouni

Originally published in
The Somerville News (Lyrical Somerville, ed. Doug Holder)
July 6, 2011, p. 23
© 2011 Jody Azzouni

The small dark, cozy like holding hands
that block the light between them.
Surprisingly, this is a good thing.
We pond together, marsh ourselves into intimacy; skinny-dip beneath the sheets.
Only the eyes, their pupils expanding like hopes,
draw light and offer it pooled and sweetened,
The dim dispersed by twinned glows.